

This post was published to Blog at 15:24:25 24/10/2013

Conference in NYC

---

Account

Blog

Never let it be said that I don't like a challenge. Attending a customer meeting in Philadelphia and then driving into New York City on a Friday evening for the conference was an experience like no other!

Starting with the vehicle of choice, a Ford Mustang, provided for me in Philadelphia, it's been getting me from A to B in style.

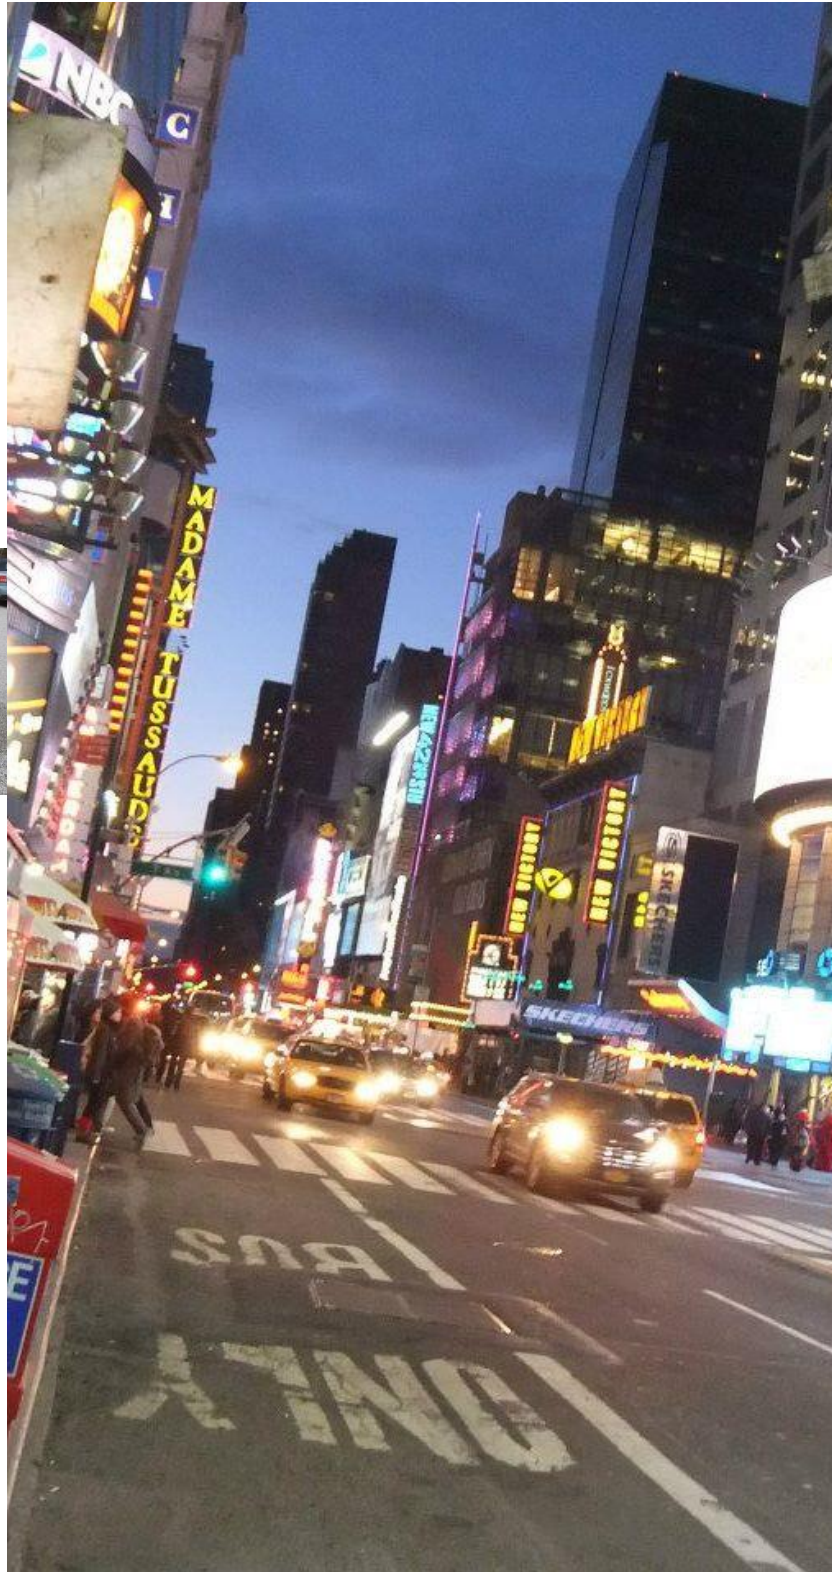

I thought the car was worth its weight in gold when I hit the toll booths. With an integrated fast pass I zoomed my way to NYC.

I hit a queue at the Lincoln Tunnel. Worse, coming out of the tunnel I lost satellite navigation so I was running blind.

When reception recovered I was stuck between two busses when the driver in the bus behind got out to inform me that I was in a bus lane and should go round.

Embarrassed I parked up at the hotel and hit the city for the first time. I was blown away! What an amazing place! More to come...